Report on the celebration of Social Work Week by MSW Learners

Social Work week is celebrated between 15th August to 21st August, every year to give Social Work learners of Netaji Subhas Open University a forum for discussion and reflection on themes surrounding social responsibility, social cohesion, and Social Work in the context of a changing environment, as well as to explore the avenues for research and practise. The learners gets the opportunity to learn more about the distinctive contribution that the social workers make to Indian social systems through discussions during this period of time. National Social Work Week draws attention to the positive influence social workers may have on the societal structure.

The MSW Learners of Bijoy Krishna Girls' College and Coochbehar College study centres conducted programmes on Social Work issues on 20th August 2023, as a part of Social Work week celebration.

Celebration in Coochbehar College Study Centre

The coordinator and the counsellors of Coochbehar College study centre organized a very thought provoking programme for the learners. A total of 60 participants from both MSW part I and II attended the programme. Some of the contemporary social work issues were taken up in the programme, and the learners were encouraged to express their views and opinions to intervene into such social problems. The discussion raised several interesting points which the learners keenly addressed with their own innovative ideas.

Celebration in Bijoy Krishna Girls College Study Centre

The Learners of Bijoy Krishna Girls College, under the guidance of the Academic Counsellor, Mr Somdeb Mukherjee, conducted a discussion forum on “Respecting Diversity through Social Action”. It originates from the People's Charter for a New Eco Social World and emphasises that local transformation is facilitated by our many strong communities of leaders. The conversation gave participants a chance to learn about the impactful decisions communities may make that result in inclusive social change. Group discussions along with individual presentations were made to make the whole session interactive and participatory.
